Origins and Development: The Vocational Training Centre of Fossano was born in 1979 as an evolution of a pre-existing training reality, the vocational school "Bongioanni", in line with the principles of "Salesian professional school". For decades has been supplying qualified workforce for companies working on the vast territory of Cuneo's province. The vocational training purpose of the school is to ensure to students tools and values and introducing them into labour market with a strong qualification and motivation. In our educational project, technical training has relevance but it does not end with teaching a "trade"; also promotes the "culture of people and work," linking it to the particular economic and social context from which the students come with their specific potential and training needs.
