EQAVET

European quality reference framework in VET

EQAVET is an instrument designed to encourage labour mobility by helping countries to promote and monitor improvements in their VET systems. Improving the quality of VET systems should result in an increased mutual trust between countries, facilitating the recognition of learning outcomes acquired by learners in different contexts.

The EQAVET Recommendation has been adopted by the European Parliament and the Council in 2009. A quality assurance and improvement cycle based on a selection of quality criteria, descriptors and indicators is provided in annex of the recommendation. More information on EQAVET can be found on the EQAVET website.
